Sorry. Moving the text convo to email so I can keep track better. I feel text can get buried sometimes. Today I have been busy going to the storage unit and organizing for this weekend's event. I just found out yesterday the stuff from Austin was already at our storage unit, so trying to catch up.

You said Matt wants two meetings: Legislative meeting-Thursday and Fundraiser meeting at some point. I know the fundraising meeting has been on the agenda to have for a few weeks now.

Thursday I have a meeting for vball at 10:00 tomorrow but I am free from 8-10 and then 12:00-2:00. Tomorrow I have our first playoff match, and need to be at my gym by 2:45. Was hoping to get meetings in today.

Friday I'm available 8-11:30. I have practice at noon. Volleyball season will be over in the next 2 weeks which will help my availability.

Before Jackie's mom passed away I told her I needed Thursday's off for time with my oldest daughter. I have not stuck to that. I was trying to be flexible with all the changes. I'm assuming that wasn't communicated to you and Matt, so I'm letting you know now so I can get back to that. Thursdays I will not be readily available unless needed for emergency situations. I try to check email periodically, but try not to schedule meetings. I try to be in the office 2-3 days a week and 1-2 days from home. Usually that is Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday. I am to work 20-30 hours a week based on what is needed.

Lastnight Jackie let me know Matt is in charge, which I was not aware of. It was explained to us Jackie was still in charge and Matt was just the middle man passing communication between the team and her. Since that is not the case, and he is in charge, I felt it only fair and necessary to communicate with Matt my schedule. Just want expectations for all to be as accurate as possible.

Hopefully we can get some good communication going. Also, we still need to get a meeting about schedules.

Thanks!
Heather
